Ehrlichman deceived and used by Nixon, says his defense lawyer

WASHINGTON (AP) — John D. Ehrlichman's lawyer accused former President Richard M. Nixon today of deliberately withholding information about Watergate "to save his own neck."

William S. Frates said in his opening statement to the jury trying Ehrlichman and four others for conspiracy in the Watergate cover-up that:

"President Nixon, who knew the full story, withheld it from John Ehrlichman and prevented Ehrlichman from making a full disclosure of the facts that Ehrlichman recommended at that time over and over again."

Frates thus laid out Ehrlichman's defense: That "Richard Nixon deceived, misled, lied and used John Ehrlichman."

He said that at the same time that Nixon was calling Ehrlichman one of the finest public servants he had ever known "he was deliberately withholding information ... covering up to save his own neck."

As Frates spoke, Ehrlichman, who had been Nixon's number two aide until he resigned four months into Nixon's second presidential term, sat at the counsel table staring fixedly at the jury.

His lawyer said it was not easy for Ehrlichman to make such charges against the man he served so long.

Frates asked the jury of nine women and three men to treat each defendant separately in making their decision at the end of a trial he expected to last three or four months.

He referred to the White House tapes that Nixon fought so hard to retain in the White House. The tapes, obtained after extended court fights and a Supreme Court decision, will be played for the jury in the course of the trial.

"The tapes might have done some people harm," Frates said, "but they are the greatest thing that ever happened to John Ehrlichman."

Frates made the first opening statement for the defense. Lawyers for two other defendants, Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson were to follow. The other defendants, H. R. Haldeman and John N. Mitchell, reserved their opening statements until the prosecution cases end.

The first witness was to be John Dean III, the first White House insider to accuse Nixon and his closest associates.

Dean was to testify to a jury that had been told by government prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste on Monday that Nixon once suggested Dean be given to investigators as a sacrificial "hors d'oeuvre (and) maybe they won't come back for the main course."

Quoting from tape recordings to be made public for the first time in the trial, Ben-Veniste told of conversations among the former President, Haldeman and Ehrlichman in April 1973 about the threat posed by Dean, then spilling the Watergate story to prosecutors.

On April 14, Ben-Veniste said, the three men "considered a strategy of pushing Dean outside the circle of wagons around the White House." It was then, he added, that Nixon suggested sacrificing Dean, a self-admitted participant in the cover-up.

"The president recognized that if Dean was guilty that half of his staff could be considered guilty," Ben-Veniste told the jury. He said Nixon made a strong suggestion that "Dean has got to look down the road and realize there is only one man who can restore him to the practice of law after it's all over."

But by then, Dean already had gone to prosecutors with his story. When that information was brought to the President by Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, Ben-Veniste said, the discussions turned to how the situation should be handled.

Haldeman, Nixon's chief of staff and Ehrlichman, his domestic counselor, resigned April 30. Dean, who had issued a public statement April 19 that "he would not become a scapegoat" in the Watergate case was fired April 30.

Other than disclosures from the tapes, the story Ben-Veniste outlined in his 3-hour, 10-minute statement, was a familiar one. It began with the meetings at which Mitchell, Jeb S. Magruder and G. Gordon Liddy allegedly planned the Watergate break-in, through its execution

No agreement in latest school talks

Negotiating teams of the Dixon Teachers Association and Dixon Board of Education met Monday night in an attempt to reach agreement on a salary contract for the 1974 school year.

Representatives of both sides refused comment on the meeting, saying that the matter will be brought out during Wednesday's school board meeting.

James Dixon, president of the school board, has called an executive session to be held prior to the meeting and Richard McCarthy, DTA president, said teachers would meet Wednesday afternoon to decide whether to accept the latest offer from the school board.

Recommendations of a fact finder, called in by both sides after talks broke down, are expected to be made public at Wednesday's meeting.

Monday's meeting, held in the board room at South Central School, lasted 1½ hours.

Agreement was said to have been reached in all areas except salary. Teachers earlier rejected a base salary of $9,100 offered by the board, and instead agreed to follow the fact finder's recommendations. Speculation was, however, that the school board did not favor recommendations of the fact finder, who reportedly offered a base pay of $9,200, and talks between the two sides again became bogged down.

The two sides were said to be $100 apart in the base-pay dispute.

Teachers are presently working on last year's contract which has a base salary of $8,350. Any pay increase would become retroactive to the beginning of the school term.

A recent survey of area school districts showed the salary demands of Dixon teachers well above the average for beginning teachers. The $9,100 figure would have given an average salary increase to instructors of $1,050.

Telephone survey of seven area districts in a 60-mile radius of Dixon indicates negotiated settlements of between $8,075 to $8,900 in base pay for the 1974-75 school year.

Perhaps the most accurate comparison in district size and teacher ratios is the DeKalb School District. Teachers in DeKalb recently ratified a contract offering a base salary of $8,540.

Supt. of Schools Stanley Weber has indicated the two districts are comparable in many respects. The DeKalb district employs approximately 275 teachers while Dixon employs 250 instructors.

In nearby Freeport, where a strike delayed the start of classes for nearly two weeks, teachers accepted a contract offering a base salary of $8,675.

At Rock Falls High School, the base pay for teachers is $8,800, while elementary instructors at Rock Falls schools receive $8,075. Sterling teachers recently approved a contract offering a base salary of $8,900.

Rochelle teachers at the high school level were given a base salary of $8,800, while teachers at the elementary level in Rochelle work from a base of $8,400.

The La Salle-Peru School District pays a base salary of $8,000 to elementary teachers and $8,625 to high school instructors. These figures were agreed upon in 1973 by both sides as part of a two-year contract.

In Rockford, with a school system much larger than that of Dixon's, the base pay for beginning teachers is $8,075 with a stipulation that the second year salary increases to $9,660.

The base pay for teachers is that figure offered to beginning teachers coming into the district with no previous experience. And from the base salary a schedule is put together on a graduated level combining years of experience and educational advancement.

Last year's base pay in Dixon was $8,375 which, worked into the salary schedule, offered a top salary of $16,248. The top figure was paid to instructors with 16 years teaching experience with a master's degree plus 32 credit hours.

Republican candidates worried and Demos move to capitalize on Ford's actions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican candidates who had hoped that the change in command at the White House would ease their political woes now are worrying about the issues raised by President Ford's pardon of Richard M. Nixon, and his amnesty and surtax stands.

An Associated Press survey showed much concern widespread among Republican office-seekers across the nation, and indicated that Democrats are making the most of it.

One Republican, Rep. LaMar Baker of Tennessee, who seeks a third term in the Nov. 5 election, said "I resent having to carry the burden of past actions of officials in our party."

Baker's remarks came after Ford had announced an anti-inflation program including a surtax on middle and upper income citizens.

The AP survey showed the Democrats stand to come close to the record 39 governorships they held after the 1936 election, as well as winning substantial gains in the Senate and House.

To counter this trend, Republicans have begun moving to cut their losses by pumping new money into the breach, planning a heavy media drive and arranging personal visits by Ford, who still rates personally as an asset despite reaction to some of his policies.

The Republican National Committee has spread a large share of its Washington staff around the country to help candidates and has pumped as much as $250,000 into the campaign pipeline in recent days.

Democrats, who remain hopeful of massive gains, concede the money could hurt them, especially in the close races where their own candidates are short of funds.

The AP survey, based on reports from bureaus in the 50 states, late polls and interviews with key politicians, shows the Democrats have a good chance of gaining from 30 to 40 new seats in the House. They already have a 248-187 majority.

In the Senate, Democrats are likely to pick up two to six new seats on top of the 58-42 advantage they already hold.

But the most dramatic gains may come in governorships, where the Democrats already hold 32 to the GOP's 18. Democrats are expected to gain no less than three and as many as eight, including the big ones —

New York and California.

Of the dozen Senate seats considered in serious jeopardy, ten are now filled by Republicans. The GOP is defending ten of the 13 or so governorships being hotly contested.

New York and California are the keystones to the potential Democratic landslide. Edmund G. "Jerry" Brown Jr., son of California's last Democratic governor, holds a substantial lead in the polls over Republican nominee Houston I. Flournoy in the race to succeed GOP Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Democrats stand to gain two or more House seats in each of those states. They also should hold Alan Cranston's Senate seat in California, and Democrat Ramsey Clark is now given a chance at upsetting veteran Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits in New York.

Besides Wilson, the Republican governors seen in most trouble are Francis W. Sargent of Massachusetts, who is running considerably behind Democrat Michael S. Dukakis in the polls, and John Vanderhoof of Colorado, who is threatened by Democrat Richard Lamm. One poll even gives Lamm a surprisingly wide lead.

Democrats also are given good chances of picking up Republican governorships in Connecticut, Arizona, Tennessee, Oregon and possibly Wyoming.

The only Democratic governor seen in any real trouble is William Egan of Alaska, who trails Republican Jay Hammond in the polls.

The GOP sees its best chances in Maine and in South Carolina, where the favored Democratic nominee, Charles Ravenel, has been ruled off the ticket by the courts and replaced by Rep. William J. B. Dorn, the man he whipped in the primary.

GOP Gov. William G. Milliken is clinging to a slim lead over Democrat Sander Levin in Michigan, the only large state where the Republicans are given a chance.

On the Senate scene, both parties expect Democrat Richard Stone to defeat Republican Jack Eckerd for the Florida seat now held by retiring GOP Sen. Edward J. Gurney.

Three Republican incumbents trail Democratic challengers — Sens. Peter Dominick of Colorado, Marlow W. Cook of Kentucky and Milton R. Young of North Dakota.

In Kansas, Sen. Robert Dole had dropped eight points behind Democratic challenger William Roy in the polls, but a new poll now shows them even.

Sen. Mike Gravel of Alaska is the only Democrat seen in serious difficulty. He trails Republican C. R. Lewis in one poll.

Republicans also cling to hopes of picking up the Nevada seat of retiring Democratic Sen. Alan Bible, although a poll shows Democratic Lt. Gov. Harry Reid now slightly ahead of former Republican Gov. Paul Laxalt.

Democrats hope to win the Utah seat of retiring Republican Wallace F. Bennett. Democratic Rep. Wayne Owens, who once led, trails Republican Jack Garn, but the gap appears to be closing again.

Handguns under fire

CHICAGO (AP) — A total of 23 persons died in a bloody outbreak of violence over the Columbus Day weekend in the Chicago area and police say handguns were the major cause of the deaths.

Seventy-four shootings were reported from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, Police Supt. James M. Rochford said Monday.

"Society is decaying somewhere along the line. Most of the shooters and the victims are young people. It's a tragedy," said Cmdr. William McCarthy of the Homicide Division.

Three of the homicides were stabbings, but the other seventeen were by shooting, officials said.

"Our job is becoming an unending battle against guns," said McCarthy. "We've got to hit the nail on the head. We have to get state or federal legislation to control the availability of guns."

Officials say poor enforcement nullifies the city's gun control law which is further hampered because the surrounding suburbs do not have such laws.

House fails to override veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House failed today to override President Ford's veto of Congress' cutoff of military aid to Turkey, killing the cutoff.

The vote was 223 to 135 to override, 17 short of the two-thirds necessary.

House Appropriations Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Tex., said the committee would meet later in the day to redraft a new emergency funding resolution for a number of federal agencies. The resolution died with the veto because the Turkey aid cutoff was attached to it.

The House vote was Congress' first on overriding any of Ford's vetoes and the House began recording it on the electronic voting counters on each end of the chamber almost immediately after Ford's veto message was read. There was no debate.

Opponents of the Turkish aid said optimistically Monday that spot checks indicated they might be able to muster a two-thirds House vote today to override Ford's veto of the aid cutoff.

But the opponents agreed with predictions of leaders, including Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, that the Senate will sustain Ford's veto whether the House overrides or not.

A presidential veto can be overturned only by a two-thirds vote of both House and Senate.

Congress has postponed its campaign recess for a week to act because the Turkey aid cutoff is in an emergency stop-gap funding resolution for agencies whose legal spending authority expired Sept. 30.

Denouncing "reckless acts," Ford said in his veto message Monday that Congress' resolution to cut off aid to Turkey is "entirely destructive" to U.S. efforts to bring about Cyprus peace negotiations.

The President also said the aid cutoff might imperil U.S. relations with Turkey "and weaken us in the crucial eastern Mediterranean."

"It directly jeopardizes the NATO alliance," he added.

Both the House and Senate originally voted overwhelmingly, four to one, to cut off the U.S. aid after Turkey's invasion of Cyprus to force negotiations on Turkey's withdrawal from the island.

But Ford contended that rather than encourage negotiations the Turkey aid cutoff would lessen U.S. influence in getting Turkey to negotiate and "could mean the indefinite postponement of meaningful negotiations."

In a clear reference to congressmen's sensitivity to Greek-American lobby efforts for the Turkey aid cutoff, Ford said lack of negotiations will not help Greece or the Greek Cypriots who formerly dominated Cyprus.

Unsuccessful burglars score at Amboy High

Lee County Sheriff's Deputies are continuing their probe into a burglary at Amboy High School which netted thieves more than $250 in cash. The burglary has been linked to an attempted safe burglary at nearby Amboy Grade School.

Sheriff Ray Nehring said tools were found at the grade school which were linked to pry marks at the high school.

Entry to the high school was made by forcing a door on the east side of the building. From the office area, thieves punched a hole through plasterboard to gain entry to the vault area. Cash was removed from cash boxes which were forced open. Papers were strewn about on the floor of the vault, deputies said.

Other offices were additionally ransacked and doors were forced open by a channel lock. Vending machines and other office machinery was not disturbed, deputies said.

Thieves were unsuccessful in opening a safe at the grade school, believed to have been hit after the high school burglary. Both burglaries occurred sometime over the weekend.

Kissinger to return home on optimistic note

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flies home today with what he calls some positive indications that his latest Middle East tour has brought progress toward Arab-Israeli peace.

Kissinger came to Rabat from Algiers and met with King Hassan II, who will be host Oct. 26 to an Arab summit conference. The Rabat summit may determine the outcome of peace moves Kissinger discussed in the capitals of Egypt, Syria, Jordan, Israel, Saudi Arabia and Algeria. No details have been disclosed, but Arab sources said proposals have evolved that include some new Israeli pullbacks from Arab lands and resumption of political negotiations.

At Algiers airport, as the American secretary of state prepared to leave, he said one subject he discussed with Algerian President Houari Boumedienne was "our different approach to the question of oil prices. We reviewed ways and means and approaches to reconciling these different points of view in the months ahead."

One of the most influential and radical Arab leaders, Boumedienne is a hardliner on oil, although his country is not a major producer.

"I reviewed with President Boumedienne first of all my trip through the Middle East," Kissinger said. "I told the president of the U.S. commitment to help the parties make progress toward a just and lasting peace if we can agree among ourselves on procedures."

TV cause of crime?

Some say the slums are responsible for crime; others blame it on poverty. Crime is committed in large cities or small villages. It depends a great deal on the parents' discipline of their children and themselves.

Does television have a bad influence on youth? In one city TV showed about 800 acts of violence in one week.

The United States spends large sums of money to educate the children. Will television turn the young American minds to crime unless parents put a stop to their children viewing television?

The FBI agrees that TV is a prime cause of crime. In one family the father and mother told their children, no more TV. The children's grades improved, they started playing outdoors, which gave them exercise, their appetites improved, they slept better—the entire family was happier.

Crime cannot be stopped by your senators and representatives voting laws giving more money to police departments. It will be necessary for Congress to pass laws that will punish people for doing wrong.

What do you think of fines that do not permit cash payments, but put wrongdoers in jail or work gangs and no excuses allowed? This goes for the President of the United States down to common laborers.

If anyone takes another person's life the killer is to be executed in 48 hours and no excuse for age, insanity or anything.

The work fines or death penalty would lower crimes so much there would be more room in the jails and less court cases in short order.

Columbus' family

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

President Ford proclaimed Oct. 14 Columbus Day. Great men are a small family on this earth and Columbus was one of them. But he did not, of course, discover America.

Cristoforo Colombo, which is his correct name, ultimately Admiral of the Ocean Sea, was born in Genoa in 1451, the exact date is uncertain. And by his own statement he became a sailor at 14.

Columbus married a daughter (Felipa Perestrello e Moniz) of one of incomparable Prince Henry the Navigator's sea captains. He inherited his father-in-law's charts, log books and instruments, which you can see to this day in Seville's amazing Archives of the Indies Library.

You can also see there, in Columbus's hand, Columbus's prayer: "To God let us pray; Bless our voyage this day; And through the Blessed Mother, our advocate on high; Protect us from the waterspout and send no tempest high."

Indisputably, Columbus's diary was also there. He is known to have written it. It was widely quoted by his son Diego and surely existed into the 16th century. Then it disappeared. To where? The whole book world has searched in vain for it since.

Columbus was tall, clean shaven, thin haired, trim and powerful—an Atlas of a man more than six feet tall and as solid as a soccer goalie. But only one known portrait exists, painted while alive. It belongs to the distinguished de Orchi family and hangs at Como, Italy.

When Columbus first beheld South America's mainland, it seemed to him an insignificant island: he called it Isla Santa. Not until he later pondered the volume of water a river (the Orinoco) poured into the sea did he perceive its truly continental character. And Columbus asserted to his dying day that this land mass belonged to Asia.

Florentine Amerigo Vespucci, in turn, who gave his name of Amerigo to the New World, probably never even got here and certainly, himself, discovered nothing.

Vespucci wouldn't have known a sextant from a meat cleaver and no contemporary records support his many claims. Amerigo Vespucci—hokus, hokoy, hokumm.

In the late 1490s John Cabot re-discovered the Cape Breton-Newfoundland region. Norwegian Eric the Red discovered it in 985. But our continent north of Cuba disappears in world maps after 1500. Instead, Asia's mainland protrudes eastward in a tremendous peninsula that includes the region Cabot found.

However, eminent librarian emeritus Lawrence C. Wroth of the John Carter Brown Library, Providence, R.I., threw new light on the fascinating question: Who discovered America?

A hardly known to us Florentine named Giovanni da Verrazano, a genuine genius in navigation and seamanship, made a properly documented voyage in 1524. It was royally approved by French King Francis I and Verrazano's highly professional report was published at the court in 1556.

Verrazano was certainly not looking for a continent. He worked for a Florentine silk enterprise in Lyons. The expedition was financed by Lyons silk merchants and was searching for "a clear seaway to Cathay."

Verrazano's report states that there was no seaway but, instead, describes in detail a continental coast extending continuously from Florida to Nova Scotia.

It indisputably identifies many American mainland places visited, including New York harbor. Then Verrazano made two subsequent voyages to our continent—1526 and 1528—although neither yielded new discoveries. But tragedy overtook this 1528 voyage. Caribbean savages killed Verrazano and dismembered his body on a quiet, wave-lapped shore.

Columbus has wandered nearly as far in death as in life. On his death May 20, 1506, at Valladolid, Spain, he was buried in the Carthusian Monastery at Seville. In 1542 Columbus's remains were exhumed, carried overseas to Hispanola to the Cathedral of Santo Domingo.

With the 1796 cession of the island to the French, his remains were re-exhumed and transported to the Cathedral of Havana.

We fought Spain in the Spanish-American War of 1898. With Spain's loss of Cuba, Columbus's remains were again reexhumed. They were carried once more over his sea route and placed in the Cathedral of Seville where they are now.

SHORT RIBS

Rising prices

By DON OAKLEY

Tired of being told of spring flood here, summer drought there and fall frost somewhere else have wiped out this or that crop and that the family food bill is going up, up, up?

Well, try this one on as a reason for increasing food prices: The deterioration of the nation's rural roads and bridges.

The price you pay for beans or beef or anything else has transportation costs cranked into it. If bad roads wear down a farmer's or a hauler's truck, or a dangerous bridge forces him to take an extensive detour, the cost of the repairs or the extra gasoline is figured into the selling price of what he carries.

Multiply this by the tens of thousands across the country and inadequate roads can have a real effect on your grocery bill, says The Road Information Program (TRIP), a highway-oriented research and information group based in Washington, D.C.

The railroads have abandoned about 40,000 miles of track since 1938, TRIP notes, and have proposed dropping another 7,000 miles, mostly in rural areas. This increases the burden on existing roads for trucking food to market. Already trucks handle about 75 per cent of all food products.

Yet the Federal Highway Administration considers more than a third of America's rural roads—a total of 1.2 million miles—to be "intolerable" because of ruts, bumps, patches and potholes.

Not only that, but about one out of every six of the country's 560,000 bridges is dangerous, says Sen. Jennings Randolph (D-W.Va.), chairman of the Senate Public Works Committee. This doesn't mean they will fall down tomorrow. It does mean that they are not safe for the loads they are carrying.

What's the answer? According to TRIP, a concerted, sustained effort to repair and strengthen our country roads and bridges. The alternative is even higher food and road repair costs in the future.

Icy anniversary

Most of us would like to be able to go south for the winter but not as far south as a certain band of U.S. Navy men and women. The Navy people are part of Operation Deep Freeze 1975, the code name for the Navy's nonmilitary logistics support of America's scientific efforts in Antarctica.

For the 25th consecutive year, a special group of trained volunteers will spend five months in the world's southernmost and coldest continent (even in its summer, which is our winter). A total of 625 men and women, primarily Navy but with elements from the Air Force, Coast Guard and Army, are involved in this year's Deep Freeze activities on the "Great White Continent."

The first Operation Deep Freeze was in 1955 when, in preparation for the 1957-58 International Geophysical Year, the Navy was assigned the task of polar exploration and construction in still little-known Antarctica.

The place is getting crowded now. An estimated 275 scientists and assistants will be "on the ice" this year, undertaking or continuing projects in every scientific discipline as part of the Antarctic Research Program administered by the National Science Foundation.

One such project is the Ross Ice Shelf Project. Begun last year, it involves extracting samples of ice at various locations on the ice shelf. The samples, taken from different depths, yield considerable information on ice movement, atmospheric pollution in the past and radiation.

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO

The season's first meeting of the Rock River Council for Exceptional Children will be held at 7:30 p.m. today in the home economics room of Dixon High School.

The Dixon Community Chest fund drive has reached $6,500, the board of directors was told at a report meeting Monday night. The goal this year is $40,000, and the report said the drive this year is progressing at about the same pace as last year's campaign.

At a meeting Tuesday night the Lee County Young Republican Club voted to donate a certain amount of money for the TV-Goldwater-Miller campaign.

25 YEARS AGO

During last night's council meeting, the mayor said black-top streets are the only ones on which leaves cannot be burned. An article in Wednesday's issue of The Telegraph incorrectly said the ban extended to all streets. The fine for burning leaves on black top is the same: not less than $3 nor more than $25.

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON (NEA)— Thomas Kauper tells the story of his wife going to the laundry and learning that the price of dry cleaning had, overnight, gone up steeply. Well, she told the operator, "then I'll go someplace else." Won't do any good, the owner replied confidently, "because all the other laundries have gone up, too."

Kauper is the nation's top cop in charge of the Justice Department's antitrust division, and he uses the story of his wife to illustrate his opinion that millions of Americans are today being taken to the cleaners because of large and small price-fixing schemes.

The trouble is, many Americans don't know it, and many others don't care about it, and thus in spite of the recent presidential assurance of a "return to vigorous enforcement of antitrust laws," very little can be immediately done to set this most undemocratic matter straight.

Price fixing is an epidemic in the nation, Kauper insists, but inflation makes it hard to tell. When the economy is stable, dealers who conspire to hike prices stick out like warts on a long neck. But during inflationary periods such as now, when everything rises every day, antitrust activity is nicely camouflaged by circumstances.

So it is that Kauper's office estimates the American consumer is likely to be overcharged some $80 billion this year for goods and services purchased in a marketplace that is increasingly uncompetitive. Much of this money waste will go for perfectly legal monopolistic services, such as regulated public utility concerns, but a good part will be forfeited to illegal business practices, i.e. those that get together to set mutually beneficial prices.

The situation is downright un-American, worse, since it hides in the inflation it helps promote. Yet, unhappily, and again despite President Ford's wrath, there are no quick solutions. The laws against price fixing, for one thing, are totally ineffective when facing large industry. Six months ago the Justice Department filed indictments against eight major dye making firms, charging they had conspired to jack prices by 10 per cent of $300 million; if they are convicted the maximum judgment against them would be $50,000 each—"almost worth it," as one lawyer grumps, "against the $300 million."

As for the small fry price fixers, they can be hurt in court but seldom are. Kauper's staff, limited in size, concentrates on 60-to-80 cases a year, mostly big; the little crooks, then, which collectively are as dangerous as the big, break laws and bank accounts with impunity.

Presumably, consumers could help drag the small conspirators to justice. But there are risks in citizens acting as cops, one being that proving antitrust is much more difficult than suspecting antitrust.

"Suppose you have two gas stations across from each other," says a trust busting attorney, "and one day they both raise their prices 5 cents a gallon. If one guy says he raised first, and the other says he followed to protect himself, that's legal. You may know damn well they got together and decided to hike prices, but unless you can prove it in court—which almost means getting an admission of guilt from both—you have no case to try at all."

And even if the legalities of prosecution were simpler, Kauper and his people feel the price fixing epidemic would still flourish. "This is probably not the kind of thing I'm supposed to say," Kauper has confided, "but I have always had a little doubt about how committed the general public really is to the notion of competition."

Evidence is that fewer and fewer people show outrage with price fixing, fewer and fewer officials are reluctant to grant antitrust exemptions to requesting industries—and hardly anyone anymore even grumbles at the continuing growth of competition-killing multinational corporations.

It's hard to figure the public attitude here. But perhaps it's simple resignation. At a time when man, following Hobbes' theory, is beginning to be wolf to man, people may have become too busy trying to survive in the market to worry whether it's still free.

Who benefits from donors?

Americans gave a whopping $24.5 billion to charities last year. Unfortunately, only part of this huge sum actually went to the needy.

According to "Everybody's Money," a quarterly publication of the Credit Union National Assn., large percentages of the monies collected by professional fundraisers and organizations go for fees and program costs rather than benevolent services, at the expense of an unknowing public.

For example, a fundraising organization hired by the Police Chiefs of America to raise money for the survivors of police killed in the line of duty produced $400,000 but subtracted $376,000 for expenses, leaving only $24,000 for the actual fund.

By contrast, Easter Seals collected more than $52.8 million in 1972, of which 62 per cent went to program services. Likewise, 69 per cent of the $84.1 million given to the American Cancer Society in 1972 went to research and public education.

The public's right to know where its charity money really goes is being championed by Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin (D-Calif.) in a bill now before Congress. The bill, H.R. 11911, would, among other things, require charities to disclose full financial information upon request.

The bill wouldn't be a cure-all, however. Religious organizations would be exempt and last year, 41 per cent of all charitable donations went to such groups.

Don't think that charities aren't interested in your small contributions. More than 80 per cent of the almost $25 billion given last year came from individual donors. Those $1 or $5 or $10 gifts add up.

Those working for charity reform have no desire to dry up this well. "We don't want to stop people from giving," says Marilyn Kolb of the Council of Better Business Bureaus' Philanthropic Advisory Dept.

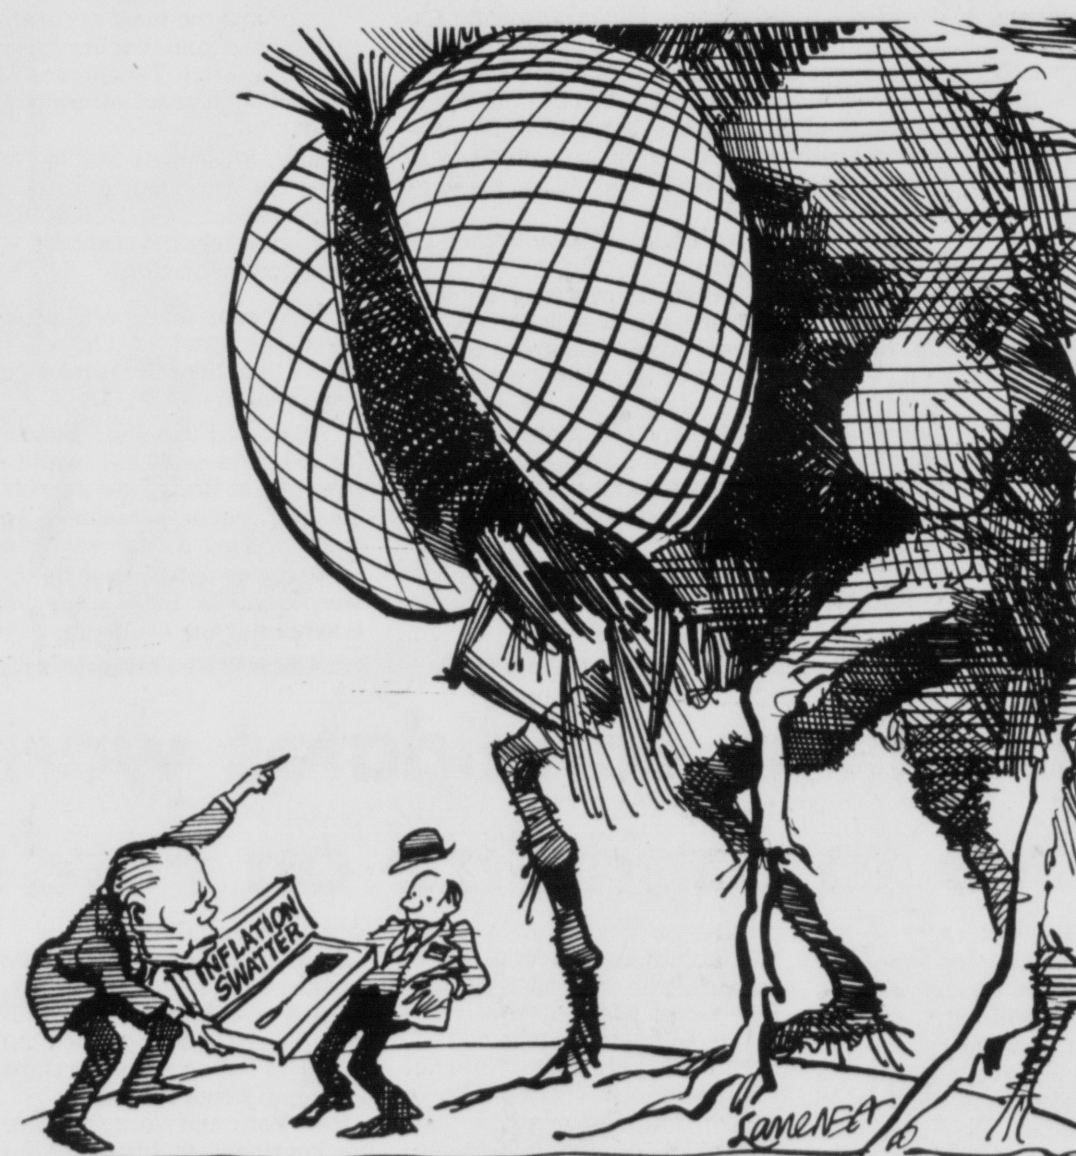

Four, count 'em

If studying only one foreign language gave you a tough time in school, consider the kids at the New Rochelle Academy in New Rochelle, N.Y. Not one, not two, not three, but four foreign languages are being thrown at them at the same time this semester.

In a "new concept in multilingual education," 150 children from 3 years old to 12 attending the academy's Grade School are being taught French, Spanish, Italian and German simultaneously.

It's not as far out as it sounds. The youngsters will be exposed to a minimum of 30 minutes a week in each language, taught by native speakers in a totally "aural-oral-visual" classroom. The goal is to bring them up to a recognition vocabulary of 1,500 words and phrases in each language.

The idea, says headmaster Paul A. Firestone, is that "since language habit forms come naturally to the impressionable, flexible and imitative young mind, we can create multilingual students of preschool and elementary grade students." After all, he notes, children in some European countries may be able to understand and respond in four or five languages.

No world policy

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)— If U.S. prestige is declining in the world, it's our own doing.

For wherever one looks, influential leaders behind the scenes are urgently begging this country to take over leadership. This is true in Japan, West Germany, Britain, Italy, Egypt, Israel and the Middle East, much of Latin America and in some of Africa.

Statesmen from London to Bonn to Rome have made clear that if the U.S. economy falters badly, West Europe will go down. The Japanese echo this concern. Equivalent messages come in from much of the underdeveloped world. A new piece of research illustrates with astounding clarity the heavy economic dependence of the non-industrialized nations on the American market, technology and leadership.

A series of reports attest to the fact that major Arab nations, beginning with Saudi Arabia, are more confident in the U.S. future than in that of any other nation. This is evidenced by the growing number of Arab investments in the United States, by the deposit of Arab funds in American banks and the growing desire of Arab governments to secure the services of American technology. Since most of the oil-rich lands will be dependent on these investments when their petroleum resources are depleted, the Arabs obviously are tying their economic future to that of the United States.

Therefore, other nations wishing to share in the petrodollar pool, apparently will need to borrow through American banks.

For the time being at least, the Chinese fear the Russians and the Russians the Chinese. Both thus need this country. Which major country, other than the United States can be trusted by both the Israeli and the Egyptians? Without U.S. approval what sort of an arms or force reduction arrangement can be worked out between the Soviet Union and West Europe? Without the U.S. nuclear umbrella and American trade and technology, Japan would face a far less rosy future.

The problem is not lack of influence. It is rather indecisiveness in the White House, the State Department and in Congress. This country today has no foreign policy, no Middle East policy, no West European policy, no Asian policy and no Russian or Chinese policies. It has not worldwide policy on oil or energy, foreign investment, inflation, the recycling of petrodollars, arms control or defense. Policies worked up in one department or another are negated by policies developed in other departments.

We make dramatic moves without planning or preparation. These confuse, annoy and frequently anger our allies and tempt our opponents to rash actions inimical to our interests.

With no visible counter action in hand, President Ford and Secretary of State Kissinger speak out strongly against those nations which are boosting oil prices beyond all reason, leaving friends with mouths agape and arousing scorn among the oil producers.

West European leaders were visibly annoyed when Kissinger, with much ado, invited the Big Five in to develop an oil-inflation-energy program—with no plan in mind and no idea of what the United States wants or is planning.

Adroit diplomatic agreements, breakthrough talks with China and Russia and tightrope negotiations to avoid war in the Middle East and Cyprus are great achievements. They do not constitute a policy which should be a standard around which friends can rally and a symbol of determination which will give pause to enemies.

Your child's health

When to call the doctor

By Alton Blakeslee & Brian Sullivan

Should I call the doctor?

All parents have periods of doubt as to whether a call to the doctor is justified. We know the doctor is busy; we don't want to call every time some little thing is wrong; we don't want to be overprotective. But we don't want to take any chances either.

To help parents faced with this dilemma, the American Medical Association has drawn up a set of guidelines. They are designed to help you determine when immediate medical care is necessary.

Call the doctor AT ONCE—When the child's symptoms, complaint, pain, seem too severe for endurance. This could be abdominal pain common to appendicitis, or sudden severe chest pain. "Immediate relief of pain is the purpose of calling the doctor without delay," the AMA says.

—When an apparently minor symptom persists for more than a few days and does not seem to be the result of some easily identifiable cause. "A nosebleed from a sharp blow is one thing," the AMA says. "A nose that bleeds constantly or frequently for no apparent reason is a different thing."

—When the symptom returns repeatedly for no apparent reason. "Digestive disturbances due to overindulgence are one thing," says the AMA. "Constant digestive distress despite care and moderation in eating is another."

—When in doubt, call the doctor. Don't take chances. In case of an accident, seek immediate medical care in the following instances:

—When the victim is unconscious.

—When bleeding is severe or cannot be controlled.

—When the victim is groggy or confused.

—When there are any of the signs of shock—pale, cold skin, sweating and weak pulse.

—When there is breathlessness and great thirst.

—When there are signs of broken bones.

—When pain is severe.

—When serious or extensive burns have occurred.

—When persistent, severe vomiting is present.

—When vision is suddenly lost or blurred.

Of course, if you cannot reach a doctor quickly in an emergency, go directly to the emergency room of the nearest hospital. Decide now where you would go in an emergency and what route you would take. You might notify the police what you are doing, and a patrol car may be able to find you en route and provide an escort.

Two rather common sources of accidents are the subject of current concern among doctors and others: the safety of a baby in an automobile and early evening poisonings in the home.

1. A group known as Physicians for Automotive Safety warns that the arms of the mother are NOT the safest place for an infant or baby in an automobile. More than 300 infants under the age of 1 year die each year in the United States in passenger-car accidents, they reported to the American Academy of Pediatrics.

Montavon-Harms wedding

MR. AND MRS. LARRY HARMS

The former Miss Mary Jo Montavon, daughter of Mrs. George Montavon, Dixon, and the late Mr. Montavon, exchanged recent marriage vows with Larry Harms, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harms, Sterling, and the newlyweds are presently residing in Clearwater, Fla.

Dear Ann by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I can't possibly talk to anyone about this problem and when I tell you what it is you will understand why.

I am 27 and was divorced in 1972. My husband was an older man and I discovered too late he was an alcoholic. He refused to get help. I confess I married him because I had an out-of-wedlock son who needed a father, and this man appeared to like the boy.

In January I married a charmer, 35, movie-star handsome, who had never been married. Ed and I went together only a few months but I was sure he would be the perfect husband and father.

Now I need to know how a woman can tell if her husband is bisexual. Before we were married Ed was a very good lover, but these past five months he has barely touched me. I've asked him to discuss his declining interest in sex and he says he still loves me but he just doesn't feel like it.

Four nights last week Ed was out with "the boys." He works in a field I won't name, but most of them are homosexuals.

How can I tell for sure? Is this grounds for divorce?—Alone Alot

Dear Alone: It's unlikely you'll be able to tell for sure, but from your letter I suspect your hunch is correct.

These days, in most states, divorces are granted for "incompatibility" and "irreconcilable differences." I'd say you have both.

Dear Ann Landers: I was divorced a few months ago and my ex-husband is driving me nuts. He has the key to the house and gives me only part of my alimony and child support because he says I am not competent to handle that much money.

The man walks in on us whenever he feels like it. He rummages around in my closets and drawers looking for telephone messages, letters—whatever. He makes a general search and questions the children as to what's going on.

What burns me up is that he is always making vulgar passes and obscene remarks. He thinks that because he pays alimony he is entitled to the privileges of a husband. The last time he tried to drag me into the bedroom I gave him a black eye.

The court granted him visiting privileges (to see the children) on Saturdays and Sundays, but he spends those two days harassing me and paying no attention to them.

I've told him I don't want him around but it does no good. Will you please tell me what to do about this pest so I can lead a normal life?—A Married Divorcee

Dear M: Go to your lawyer and follow his instructions. There are several things you can do. First, you can have the locks on your doors changed. Second, deliver the kids to HIM and make it clear that he is not to set foot in your home. The law will protect you on this one. If he shows up, he is in violation and you can call the police.

The lawyer can demand that he give you the child support and alimony, in total. If he fails to do so, he is again in trouble with the law.

You have the right to be left alone, and if you put up with any more of his shenanigans, you subconsciously enjoy it.

Homemakers news

By FRANCES REEVERTS
Lee Co. Extension Adviser
Canning Vegetables and Fruits

As the fall harvest of vegetables and fruits is completed, obtaining home canning equipment has been difficult. Fruit jars and jar lids have been in short supply on the grocer's shelves.

I had the opportunity two weeks ago to be in Minneapolis, Minn., and talked with Mrs. Mary Lou Williamson, Director of Consumer Service for Ball Corporation, about many of those home canning questions homemakers have been asking me. She replied that shipments of fruit jars and lids are being produced at a slower rate than normal due to the shortage of chemicals used in their production. I inquired about homemakers having trouble getting jar lids to stick after being processed so that a complete seal does not occur. Food spoilage can occur quickly when this happens. Be sure that all jar lids with rubber adhesive are soaked in boiling water for at least five minutes before they are placed on the jar to be processed. The soaking of the jar lid will make the jar lid sticky so that it will adhere to the jar as soon as the food product is processed. This is very important when processing foods in a pressure cooker for a short period of time or less than 10 minutes.

Another concern when canning vegetables or fruits this fall that many of you have asked about is tightening jar lids when processing foods. Jar lids must vent or exhaust during processing to remove harmful oxygen from the head space and also to release internal pressures which could cause "buckling" deformation of the lid.

Please read manufacturers directions before using any canning equipment or processing any food product.

If jar lids are closed too tightly, a buckled lid or an unsealed jar of food will result.

Directions for home canning of any food product are as follows:

Examine top and edges of jar; both must be smooth and even.

Wash and rinse lids and bands. Cover lids with water that is boiling OR bring to simmer (180 degrees F.). Remove from heat. Leave in water until ready to use.

Fill hot jar. Leave 1-inch head space for meats, corn, peas and other low-acid foods; ½-inch head space for fruits and acid vegetables. Add liquid to completely cover food solids. Leave ¼-inch head space for juices, preserves, pickles and relishes; ¼ inch head space for jellies.

Remove air bubbles from fruit and vegetable packs by running a non-metallic utensil between food and jar.

Wipe top and screw threads of jar with clean, damp cloth. Put lid on jar with sealing compound next to glass.

Screw band tight but do not use force. Band must screw down evenly all the way around.

Process immediately, using right time and method for product being canned.

Remove jars from canner. Do not tighten bands after processing. Test for seal.

Remove bands 24 hours after processing.

Store fruit jars without bands in a cool, dry place.

Some automatic plays are less automatic than others. The one shown today was first used by Harry Fishbein of New York, one of the great players back in the '30s. This isn't the exact hand but the principle involved is the same.

East wins the first trick with the king of spades and leads the suit back. The slam is a good one. South has already lost the spade finesse but will make his contract if he can score four club tricks.

He has a sure thing against any 3-2 club break—only a 4-1 break can hurt him. In the normal course of events he will play dummy's king of clubs and lead a club back to his ace because if East has four clubs to the jack-nine there is no way to pick the suit up.

East will show out on the second club. South will have a proven finesse against West's jack-nine and be home with the bacon.

When he defended the hand Fishbein played the nine of clubs on the first lead of the suit.

This falsecard gave South a chance to guard against four clubs to the jack in either hand. He fell for it like a ton of bricks. Played the second high club from dummy and went down one trick.

Polly's Pointers

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I hope someone can tell me how one could use incomplete decks of playing cards. I prefer a creative way if possible. — SALLY.

DEAR POLLY — My big Pet Peeve is with the post office. I do wish they would put the name of the town and its zip code number on letters when stamping them and then we would always know the zip code. — MRS. E. B. K.

DEAR POLLY — With very little sewing Sue could make tennis racket covers from the legs cut off her dungarees. Slip the racket into a leg so the seams coincide with the frame of the racket and the bottom hem is about three or four inches from the handle. Cut the upper part of the dungaree leg to parallel the curve of the racket, allowing an inch for a good sturdy seam. Remove the racket and sew this one seam. Attach or sew a cord or lacing to the outside of the cover so that when the racket is in the new cover the lacing will gather the bottom of the cover snugly around the handle. Sue could even "fancy up" the case as she did her dungarees. — ELIZABETH.

DEAR POLLY — I am allergic to metal sewing thimbles and not a store in town had a plastic thimble in my size. I wrote the companies who make them but did not receive a reply so made my own. I took masking tape and carefully wound that around the top and bottom and over the tip of my finger, slid it on and off several times until there was easy movement and had a tape thimble that is now hard and firm and really works. — JENNIE.

DEAR POLLY — Those who are tired of having unsightly vitamin and prescription medicine bottles sitting around can keep them in a spice rack. I transfer my vitamins to a labeled spice jar. Most prescriptions are taped on the bottles and the tapes can be removed and transferred to spice jars. They look much neater this way and are never noticed as being medicine bottles. If there are little ones around the house the rack should be hung in a place they cannot reach. Mine hangs

DEAR POLLY — Most of us change purses frequently and that is not easy. There are so many things carried in an average woman's purse. I put all the essential things that always go in my purse in a clear plastic bag. When anything is needed I just lift out the bag and find the item without a lot of searching. When changing bags there is just this one plastic bag to transfer from one purse to the other. — MRS. J. R. W.

Members planning to be accompanied by guests are asked to notify Mrs. Leslie or her co-hostess, Mrs. Leonard Larkin.

Let's Talk About Decorating

By GLADYS WOLBER
Watch That Scale

By BEVERLEY CAPON

Scale is an important element of decorating that is often ignored by people who are planning a decorating scheme. Basically, scale is the relationship of a piece of furniture to the size of the room and to the size of the other furnishings in the room.

If you're decorating a large room, be sure that your furniture isn't so small that it will get lost in the room. A large room requires a good sized sofa and chairs to balance its size. The reverse, of course is also true. A massive chandelier may look elegant in the store, but if placed in a tiny room it will dwarf the other furnishings.

Here are a few simple rules: Choose heavy pieces that reach the floor when decorating a large room. A small room will look better if the furniture has slim legs that don't give a "tied to the floor" look. Dark hues will make your furniture appear heavier, which is great for a large room, but stick to lighter hues when decorating that small room.

Our design counselors will be glad to assist you with your redecorating needs. Visit our showrooms for unlimited ideas and the finest selection of quality furnishings within your budget of course.

Efficiency

I believe significant tax monies could be saved by centralizing some procedures now repeated by each individual school district in Lee County. For example, centralized bidding of such items as paper and fuel oil would lower the prices of said items through larger volume purchases. The County Superintendent could perform this function.

LEGAL NOTICE

ILLINOIS TAX REFUND

A portion of the State of Illinois tax collected on purchases of cigarettes made during the period January 1, 1967 to December 1, 1971 will be refunded.

THIS REFUND DOES NOT APPLY TO CIGAR, PIPE OR CHEWING TOBACCO PURCHASES.

The Circuit Court of Cook County in the case of DOROTHY HRADEK, etc., et al., plaintiffs, vs. MARSHALL KORSHAK, etc., et al., 66 CH 7491 has held that Rule 52 of the Illinois Retailers' Occupation Tax Rules was unconstitutional and void insofar as it prohibited a deduction of Cigarette Use Tax from the selling price of cigarettes for the purpose of computation of the Illinois Use Tax. Prior to the Court's Decree, the Illinois Department of Revenue required that the Cigarette Use Tax assessed on a package of cigarettes be included as part of the base price on which Sales Tax was computed. Therefore, a taxpayer paid Sales Tax on Cigarette Use Tax. The Court held this to be improper and has provided that tax payments improperly collected on retail purchases are to be refunded to the taxpayer who bore the burden of the tax. The taxpayer's right to refund is subject to final approval by the Circuit Court of Cook County in the above captioned litigation.

TAX PAYMENTS ELIGIBLE FOR REFUND

The Circuit Court directed the Treasurer of the State of Illinois to establish a Protest Fund and to deposit a portion of the Illinois Cigarette Taxes collected by the state in that Fund to serve as a source for reimbursement to taxpayers of taxes collected pursuant to the provisions of Rule 52. Any person who purchased cigarettes in the State of Illinois on which tax was assessed pursuant to Rule 52 during the period January 1, 1967, the date on which payments were first made into the Protest Fund, to December 1, 1971, the date on which the Department of Revenue amended Rule 52, is eligible to claim a refund. The amount of tax improperly assessed on a 20 cigarette package of cigarettes on January 1, 1967 was $0.00245. The amount of tax refundable will be determined by subsequent Order of the Circuit Court. The amount of the refund may be decreased if the Court allows costs of administration, attorneys fees and other related expenses to be deducted from the refund, or if the total fund is not sufficient to pay all claims and the costs and expenses of processing and paying refunds. The validity of your claim and your right to a refund will be determined by the Circuit Court. No payment will be made until all claims have been filed, processed and payment approved by the Circuit Court of Cook County.

TAXPAYERS ELIGIBLE TO FILE CLAIMS FOR REFUND

Any purchaser who purchased cigarettes from any source in the State of Illinois not for the purpose of resale, but for his own consumption or for use as a gift and who was assessed and paid taxes pursuant to Rule 52, is eligible to claim a refund. A cigarette is defined as any roll for smoking made wholly or in part of tobacco irrespective of size or shape and whether or not such tobacco is flavored, adulterated or mixed with any other ingredient, and the wrapper or cover of which is made of paper or any other substance or material except tobacco.

PROCEDURE FOR FILING CLAIM FOR REFUND

You may obtain claim forms from most State or National Banks in the State of Illinois or from the Trustee.

Will Erwin speaks on Rural Development

By CONNI DETTMAN
Farmers, businessmen and governmental officials are all "governed by conscience," William E. Erwin, assistant secretary of agriculture for rural development, said Thursday night in an address at the annual Farmers' and Businessmen's Banquet sponsored by the Ogle County soil and water conservation district.

As coordinator and head of federal rural development efforts, Erwin feels rural development is a "process aimed at making rural America a better place to live and work," instead of providing economic benefits or securing services and facilities for the community.

Sec. Erwin was appointed to his position after being pulled off his Indiana farm in 1973. He has served under Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon, and now Ford, in a capacity as consultant, board member, foundation representative and advisor until his appointment under the Nixon administration.

One of Erwin's main goals is to find out "how government may improve its assistance to local leaders." His work takes him to many rural communities so he can find out "what's working and what isn't working."

Erwin explained government by conscience by relating one of his own experiences. He told of his experience on a farm just after he graduated from college in 1949. Erwin told the group of nearly 200 couples and their families of how he had wanted to build a drainage ditch. He had made all of the plans, including exactly where it would be located. Erwin got a crew to dig the ditch and work began. The crew dug but soon they hit marsh grassland. Putting drainage tile in this unstable ground was asking for trouble.

Now Erwin could see his prestige sinking along with his dignity and he knew he had to think of something soon to save face. He thought a little bit and then had a couple of workers lower him into the deep ditch head-first, where Erwin laid out marsh grass to absorb the lake bottomland. The ditch was laid and Erwin was proud because he thought he had used an idea which no one had ever thought of to rectify the problem. Well, the ditch is still being used but it was a short time later he found his idea wasn't new; it had been used by the farmers in ancient times.

Indirectly Erwin gave an example of "governing by conscience" or using one's conscience to farm. Farmers live by their conscience, he explained, and this is why farming tends to be the most efficient industry in the world. Advantages of the farming industry are high because its products can be produced over and over, year after year, whereas the supply of oil in the Arab countries can run out. The Arabs can put high prices on oil exports but when their supply is gone the high revenues will seem to be reversed.

Some people have said, place export controls on farm products and food of world demand. These controls would probably do more harm than good. Food and farm products are in demand by almost every country. A control on these products would force countries to become more independent, thus denting the United States' bargaining unit.

Continuation with growing the world's best bargaining tool would in turn demand expanded rural development projects. The move of today's society is toward the rural areas. Eighty per cent of today's people would rather live in the country than the city.

Those living in rural America are mostly farming large acreages and are afraid of rural development projects. Farmers don't want to see the land wasted or their industry abused. This is why farmers live by their conscience to maintain and produce their bargaining product.

In keeping with his goal to see "what's working and what isn't working," Erwin spent Friday visiting seven area points of interest.

His first stop was to see the Blackhawk Senior Citizen's Housing Development in Oregon. The project was financed by the Farmers Home Administration. Larry Lillie, chairman of the local group which built the apartments, explained to Erwin the effect it has had on the community.

After hearing a report on the RC&D project Erwin's tour went to the Rockford School of Medicine-operated Mt. Morris Health Center. There he discussed with the group about the use of the facility to train students in family practice medicine.

In Polo, Erwin saw the ambulance service operation and while stopping in Milledgeville he discussed the progress of the community beautification and ambulance projects.

Erwin wound up his tour after seeing "what's working and what isn't working" in Galena. There he saw historic sites made possible through rural development.

Tractor operator winner

A Douglas County youth, James Snider, 18, Rt. 1, Tuscola, won the recent Western U.S. Regional 4-H Tractor Operator's Contest held Sept. 19-21 in Omaha, Neb., posting entries from 17 states.

Designed as a public demonstration of skills and knowledge acquired by 4-H members participating in the National 4-H Tractor Program, the contest consisted of a written examination on tractor maintenance and safety, a preliminary safety inspection on the tractor driven in the contest, and a two-wheeled driving event.

Snider won the opportunity to represent Illinois in the Regional competition over 55 other youth in the state competition held at Springfield, Aug. 8-9, during the Illinois State Fair.

A 4-H member for nine years, Snider lives on a 300-acre grain farm where he, his brother and father, operate three tractors. Participants in the contest were taken to the Nebraska tractor test track and laboratory at the University of Nebraska where tests are made on horse power, fuel consumption and noise output of tractors.

Snider was accompanied to Omaha by U. of I. Extension Safety Specialist O. L. Hogsett.

The contest is sponsored nationally by the American Oil Foundation and conducted locally and at the state level by the Illinois Cooperative Extension Service.

Held in conjunction with the regional tractor operator's contests were an invitational small engines event and an invitational automotive event.

The Illinois entries, Mary L. Lawrence, 19, Nashville, placed third; Alan Haas, 17, Roanoke, placed fifth; and together, the team placed third in the automotive event.

4-H Window Display awards

"Build Your Future" was the theme depicted by the Dixie Girls 4-H Club in their prize winning entry according to Kathy Augustine, Lee County Extension Adviser, Home Economics. Their display can be seen at Family Tailored Homes, Dixon, through Saturday. It features bricks in a wall with each brick representing a characteristic of the 4-H program.

Miss Augustine notes that 16 4-H clubs throughout Lee

County created eye-catching window displays to promote 4-H activities during National 4-H Week, Oct. 6-12. The Dixie Girls are lead by Mrs. Harold Wright, 121 Park Avenue, Dixon, and Mrs. Stanley Smith, 514 Heather Lane, Dixon. The runner-up was Hamilton Hustlers at Walnut Memorial Library.

Eight additional clubs received "A" ratings and special merit awards. They are: Compton-Brooklyn Beavers at E & H Hardware, Paw Paw; Gold Star at Ashton Clothing Store, Ashton; Marion Busy Bees at Shaw's Gamble Store, Amboy; Maytown Comets at Duffy's Real Estate, Amboy; Palmyra Pixies at Fab-N-Trim, Dixon; Petunia City at Fab-N-Trim, Dixon; Willing Workers at Spurgeon's, Dixon; and 4-H Smilies at Ames Furniture, Dixon.

Frost lowers soybean market

Not only have early frosts reduced soybean yields, they have also lowered the market quality of the crop, says L. F. Stice, University of Illinois agricultural economist. This will create problems in grading, in market discounts, in storage and in processing, he adds.

The most serious problems are expected to be with green and immature soybeans, says Stice. Some which were green when frosted will dry out to be sound soybeans with damage mostly in lower yields.

However, the September 22 frost stopped the growth of immature beans in the northern third of Illinois and the September 30 frost finished the kill in most other areas. This means that the quantity of green and immature soybeans coming to a market is likely to be the largest ever—too large to be blended off with yellow beans.

Soybeans which remain green after drying impart a greenish cast to soybean oil—a factor which is economically objectionable to refiners and aesthetically objectionable to housewives, observes Stice. To produce the "snow-white" shortening to which housewives have become accustomed, the oil must be bleached before processing.

Exporters may also face problems in trying to fill contract requirements with green and immature soybeans. Most export sales provide for the shipment of No. 2 grade soybeans which can have only three per cent of kernels with any kind of damage.

Green-colored soybeans are difficult to grade at the country elevator because not all green coated soybeans are damaged. According to grade standards of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, a green-coated soybean is graded yellow and should not be discounted if a cross section of the bean is yellow or has a tinge of yellow. On the other hand, when the cross section is intense green or is chalky or mealy, it is graded as a damaged soybean.

This means that green-coated soybeans in a drawn sample will be cut in order to view the cross section, says Stice. If farmers waiting in line to unload trucks do not want to wait for an accurate grade, the country grain dealer has no choice but to assume that all green-coated soybeans are damaged. As a result, some green beans may be unduly discounted. One alternative is for the grain dealer to accumulate samples from each grower in a can for grading later.

Market discounts for green soybeans, that is for those which do not grade yellow, will depend upon the quantity of such beans coming to market and the market outlet of the buyer. Producers may escape some of this penalty by storing green beans on the farm. If they do, they should consider a forward sale at current high prices, recommends Stice.

Colorado or bust
Fifteen 4-H'ers from Lee County spent a week visiting 4-H families in Colorado this summer. These boys and girls, shown with their chaperones, raised enough money to charter a bus for nine-day trip. Stops that were made along the way included the Eisenhower Museum, Air Force Academy and Colorado Springs.

Following the recipe
Youth programs that are related to 4-H are also conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service. These girls, who are residents of Migrant Camps in Lee County, learn shortcuts in the kitchen at a series of programs held in the Ashton School.

Rain report

The annual crop season rainfall report for Lee County was completed Oct. 1, according to M. T. Barlass, Lee County Extension adviser.

This weekly report compiled by the Cooperative Extension Service was obtained from daily readings from 20 reporting operators in all parts of the county.

The average total rainfall for 1974 was 23.8" compared to 20.4" in 1973. High year was 1972 with 33.6" and 1971 recorded only 11.8" during the May 1 to Oct. 1 periods.

High reporting station for the 1974 year was Ernest Norden in Hamilton Township with 30.5". The driest point in the county was in Bradford Township, reported by Lyle Warner.

Although these are unofficial reports, Barlass pointed out, the variations around the county are extremely interesting.

Considering the differences of 1972, '73 and '74, there is no specific area of the county that always gets the most rain but there are some significant patterns, he added.

Copies of the county survey of all rainfall reports are available at the Lee County Extension office in Amboy.

The Doctor Says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a middle-aged woman and have bilateral polycystic renal disease. I am being treated by a very competent nephrologist. I have had several side effects, such as anemia, gout, diabetic symptoms, swelling of the feet, itchy skin, leg cramps and nausea with vomiting. I might say this is an inherited condition as several in my family have had the same complaint. At the present time I am on a salt-free diet and taking, among other things, four sodium bicarbonate tablets daily, Zylprim to control the gout, plus iron and liver for my blood.

Over a period of time I have lost over 80 pounds (from over 200 pounds down to about 120 pounds). I am getting along quite well at the moment, but can you explain to me why the salt-free diet and limited potassium and protein and the sodium bicarbonate?

DEAR READER — For the benefit of our other readers, polycystic kidney disease is a defect that a person is born with. There are many (poly) cysts formed in the kidney causing it to be enlarged, and sometimes affecting its function. How much of the normal kidney tissue is replaced with cysts determines how well the kidneys function.

Three main complications of polycystic kidney disease are bleeding, high blood pressure and kidney failure. Most of your treatment is directed toward the latter. Since your kidneys are not working in an optimal fashion your doctor is wisely helping them.

When the kidneys are damaged they may not be able to eliminate salt normally. In that case salt has to be eliminated from the diet to prevent the accumulation of salt in the body which would cause accumulation of water and lead to many severe problems.

The same applies to potassium. The kidneys normally eliminate any potassium your body doesn't need. When they are unable to do this, the excess accumulation of potassium can upset the body chemistry and even affect the heart. So, I am not surprised that your potassium and the foods rich in potassium are limited. Individuals taking water pills have the opposite problems. The flushing out of water often washes out too much potassium which can be bad also.

One of the main functions of the kidneys is to eliminate urea, hence the name urine. Urea is formed from the ammonia or nitrogen-containing part of amino acids. Protein consists of combinations of amino acids. If you eat a lot of excess protein, your kidneys have to eliminate more urea. When your kidneys are not "up-to-snuff" you need to eliminate this problem to prevent the accumulation of urea in the blood. In large amounts it can lead to "uremic poisoning."

The kidneys also play a role in balancing the chemistry of your body, between being too acid or too alkaline. This is very important for normal function.

Unhurt as car hits horse

OREGON—Raymond Dominguez Jr., 26, Freeport, escaped injury Monday when his car slammed into a horse on Ill. 72. The accident occurred near Columbine Road at the Carl Siefken farm, rural Forreston.

According to Siefken, something apparently spooked the horses, prompting them to trample down a section of fence in the barnyard.

Dominguez was traveling west on the highway and told Ogle County Sheriff's Police he didn't see the animal until it was too late to stop.

Forreston Police, Siefken and auxiliary police officers rounded up the horses following the accident. No tickets were issued.

Hennepin Canal Youth Corps project proposed by Burke

Don Burke, Democratic candidate for State Representative, 37th District, has proposed turning the Illinois-Mississippi Feeder Canal into a Youth Conservation Corps project.

Addressing a group of campaign workers at his Dixon headquarters Monday night Burke proposed renovation of the 75-mile long canal into a state park.

He explained the corps was a federally financed program to provide employment for youth ages 15 to 19. The program is set up so the youngsters work in conservation areas under the direction of the state's own department of conservation.

Citing a corps project at Pere Marquette State Park in 1974 he said the results were "very promising."

The feeder canal, popularly known as the Hennepin Canal, runs from the Rock River in the Sterling-Rock Falls area southward through Whiteside and Bureau Counties, joining the Illinois-Mississippi Canal near Interstate 80. That canal then runs westerly through Henry County to the Mississippi River.

"The Hennepin Canal property was deeded as an Illinois State Park in July 1963," Burke declared, "but nothing has been done with it. The Department of Conservation has no plans in the immediate or foreseeable future to do anything with it."

"Under a corps program," he continued, "it could be dredged, cleaned out, fences could be repaired, access roads could be repaired and expanded. The locks are still in good condition and the level of the Damage to the wrecker was set at $1,500 and damage to the van was estimated at $8,500. The accident was handled by State Police.

Rochelle Council votes to sample ambulance opinion

ROCHELLE—In a 3-2 vote, the Rochelle City Council Monday night, voted to accept plan five as proposed by the mayor's committee for ambulance service. Plan five suggests all negotiations with private ambulance services be slowed down and a committee set up to obtain public opinion on an ambulance service district.

Commissioner Phil May, before casting his vote said, "I'd like to go on record that I feel we should definitely start the formation of an ambulance district. I've had quite a time weighing this ambulance service pro and con and it hasn't been easy. I do feel that ultimately it would be to our advantage to have this ambulance in our fire department or our district because I think when you are talking about one thing or another and conceivably as our town grows, we will have more full time personnel."

Commissioner Francis Connolly, who voted against the plan, stated, "I agree with the idea of ambulance service run by the fire department and I am opposed to subsidizing outside the area." Connolly further suggested the council consider a district and felt it was up to the people to decide if they wanted a district. He also felt the council should slow its proceedings on the service and avoid getting in a bind because a new building to house the vehicles will be needed and viewing an alternative proposal with an outside service handling the ambulance might be cheaper. Mayor Bill Cipolla cast the other no vote.

On a similar 4-1 vote, a resolution to adopt a contract for private ambulance service was defeated.

In other business, the council accepted a resolution to advertise for bids on the residential garbage pick-up.

Hearing on insurance proposal

SPRINGFIELD — A proposed rule on the handling of consumer complaints received by the Illinois Department of Insurance will be the topic of a public hearing today.

The proposed rule sets forth the entire complaint handling process, defines what is expected from insurance companies, agents and brokers operating in Illinois and establishes standards for determining valid complaints.

According to Robert B. Wilcox, Illinois insurance director, "The proposal has two purposes — to offer consumers an avenue for settling complaints and to provide the Illinois insurance industry with guidelines necessary for effective, fair and efficient resolution of these complaints.

"We believe," Wilcox said, "that a responsive complaint handling system will serve to benefit both the consumer and the insurance industry. Early detection of trends in consumer problems should encourage industry-department cooperation in avoiding practices which cause consumer complaints and hurt the insurance market."

Oakland hopes to explode with bats instead of tempers

OAKLAND (AP)—The tempestuous Oakland A's hope to explode tonight with their bats instead of their tempers in the third game of the 1974 World Series with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I'm expecting us to break out any day now, but I've been expecting that for six weeks... So I don't really know," said Oakland Manager Alvin Dark, whose team has had more notice recently for hitting people than hitting baseballs.

A change in the batting order might be just the thing that the A's need to add some punch to their recent Punch and Judy hitting. Dark, whose team won the World Series opener with an undistinguished 3-2 victory Saturday in Los Angeles and then lost the second game by the same score, is thinking about an adjustment in his hitting alignment.

Noting that the A's have a left-hander in Al Downing, Dark revealed: "I might bat Bill North first instead of second. He has more power as a right-handed hitter. I might also move some of the others around in the lineup, too. We've just got to get some more runs."

The A's may not be hitting well lately, but they've certainly had the pitching. And the best on their staff goes tonight, 25-game winner Catfish Hunter.

The tobacco-chewing Hunter, well rested since he only pitched to one batter on Saturday after working in last week's American League playoffs, has been embroiled in a salary dispute with Oakland owner Charles O. Finley.

Hunter, mad at Finley because he claims the owner reneged on half of his yearly $100,000 salary, might make the Dodgers pay for it tonight.

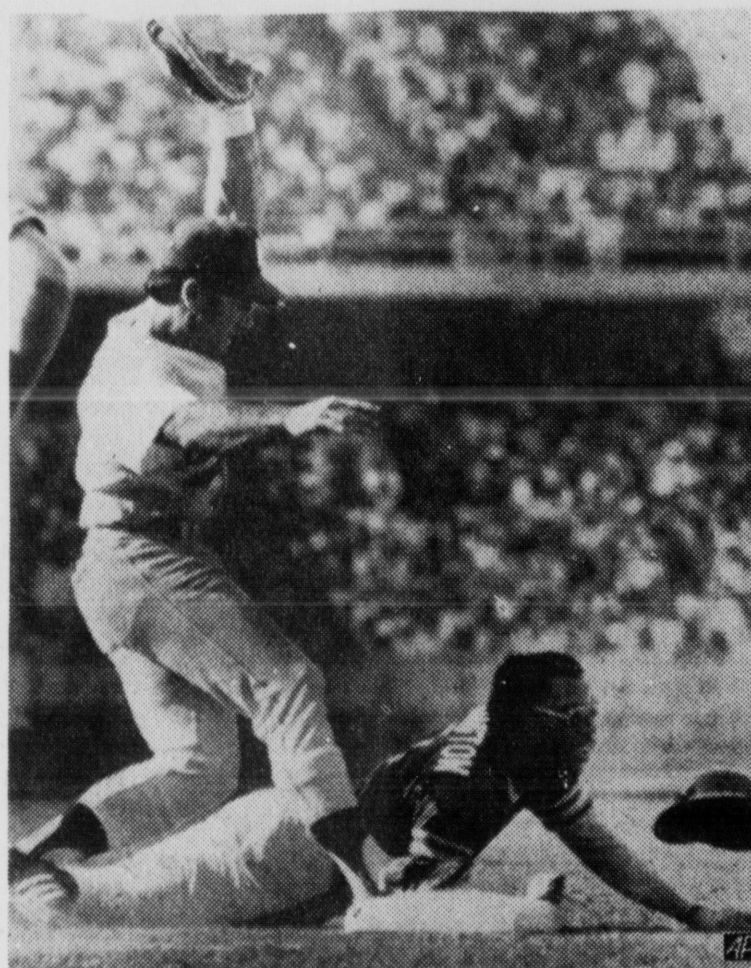

The A's fight as well as anybody else, too. The Dodgers, or any other team in baseball, are sedate compared to this flamboyant, aggressive team of oddballs.

The combative A's started the Series out with a bang when pitchers Rollie Fingers and Blue Moon Odom exchanged blows in the clubhouse last week. And during Monday's off-day workout at the Oakland Coliseum, a sports writer was the target of wrath.

Reggie Jackson, Oakland's star outfielder, verbally challenged Murray Olderman, editor of Newspaper Enterprises Association in San Francisco, because of an article he wrote for a national magazine. Jackson roared out of the batting cage when he saw Olderman and abused him verbally before a crowd of gaping onlookers.

Jackson was unhappy about the general tone of the article, which dealt with his alleged battle with other players for sole leadership of the team.

Meanwhile, back at the World Series, Downing concentrated on keeping the A's in their protracted hitting slump. Despite his modest 5-6 season record, Los Angeles Manager Walt Alton feels that Downing can continue to maintain the Dodgers' masterful pitching of late.

Marshall is ready

By ERIC PREWITT
AP Sports Writer

OAKLAND (AP)—The Oakland A's Darold Knowles, inactive so far in the World Series, owns a pitching record that busy Mike Marshall of the Los Angeles Dodgers can't break.

"But, if this thing goes seven games, I'm sure he'll tie it," said the Oakland left-hander who appeared in all seven games of the 1973 World Series to establish a record.

Marshall, who set a major league record with 106 appearances during the 1974 National League season, was the Dodgers' finishing pitcher in the first two World Series games at Los Angeles and was ready to back up starter Al Downing here tonight in game No. 3.

"I don't know how he pitches as much as he does. I know I couldn't do it," said Knowles.

Marshall, a sturdy little right-hander with mutton chop sideburns and a buttoned-down mouth, isn't about to let any rival pitchers know the secret behind his durability.

"But I think, I can read between the lines," said the A's Bob Locker, a right-handed reliever who sat out this season with a bad arm.

"It's partly a mental game. He believes there's no way you can get stronger by resting. The more he throws, the stronger he gets. I'm sure he'll pitch in 100 games next year, too," said Locker.

Locker was a teammate of Marshall in 1969 with the short-lived Seattle Pilots and recalls that Marshall "was low man in our bullpen, behind Diego Degui and me."

"Our pitching coach up there, Dal Maglie, didn't believe in Mike's theories and didn't like him throwing the screwball, his best pitch."

The Dodgers' Walter Alston, blessed with many great relief stars in his years in Los Angeles and Brooklyn, and most other big league managers are going to their bullpens more than ever these days.

The A's Alvin Dark, pulled starter Ken Holtzman, who had allowed only an unearned run, in the fifth inning of the World Series opener, used relief ace Rollie Fingers into the ninth and then brought in 25-game winning starter Catfish Hunter to get the final out.

The last pitcher to throw a complete game in the World Series was Pittsburgh's Steve Blass in the Pirates' 2-1 final game victory over Baltimore in the 1971 World Series.

Some bunts might help

By MIKE CUNIFF

A few words and thoughts about various subjects:

The opening two contests of the 1974 World Series once again showcase the two best teams in major league baseball. Perhaps Chicago Cub manager Jim Marshall will notice the dependence upon the sacrifice bunt by both teams to move runners into scoring position.

If the Oakland A's and the Los Angeles Dodgers both recognize the importance of the bunt as another potent weapon in their offensive arsenal, maybe Marshall could consider its usefulness. The bunt is just another little push but the Cubs disdain its advantage.

How about a ruling which enforces base-runners sliding for the base instead of the pivotman on the double play? Oakland's Reggie Jackson was a body's length away from second base in one instance Sunday trying to intimidate Davey Lopes of the Dodgers on a double play situation.

There is usually a lot of talk about "mythical" touches of second base or "ghosting" the force out but the defensive player who makes a legitimate force play every time would last about one week with the sliding runners trying to crash into him.

Make the runner slide for the base and not the fielder's body. Once that rule is enforced, then penalize the fielding team if a mythical force-out occurs.

Attendance records were established in each of the first two games at Los Angeles for a stadium which is the number one baseball attraction anyway. And this brings up another point. If the playoffs and World Series bring record-breaking crowds, why must the majority of clubs finish out their regular season drawing three or four thousand people a game?

The final day in the American League, total attendance for the six contests was 24,812 hardy fans. The figure averages out to about 4,000 per game. Why not take two weeks off the start of the season when cold and wet weather forces cancellation of games plus another two weeks at the end when most of the games are meaningless?

Reduce the schedule to around 130 games. Interest would not be dimmed. If anything, the reduction in games played would put more emphasis on the 130 played and little opposition would be experienced by the overlapping of the football, basketball and hockey season.

Joe Torre to the New York Mets for pitchers Ray Sadecki and Tommy Moore. Torre, who hit .363 for the Cardinals in 1971 to win the National League batting championship, has been coveted by the Mets for a couple of years.

The Mets, desperate for long ball punch, apparently are going to deal to overcome their perennial problem of a lack of home runs. But Torre only hit 11 home runs this season and has slugged 25 or more only twice in 15-year major league career, including 36 for the Atlanta Braves in 1966.

Look for the Boston Red Sox to pick up either Willie McCovey of the San Diego Padres or Billy Williams of the Cubs if they try the interleague trade route for a designated hitter. Also, the Minnesota Twins will deal either Harmon Killebrew or Tony Oliva to another team. An American League team would be a likely choice since neither Killebrew nor Oliva is a plus in the field but stillswings a dangerous bat.

What do the Cubs need to become pennant contenders instead of pretenders? Help in virtually every area would be welcomed but one of the greatest needs is a lead-off hitter who gets on base consistently. Rick Monday batted .294 and Don Kessinger .259 for the North Siders the past season. Monday's 84 runs led the team.

The National League Rookie of the Year for 1974 should be an interesting battle between Greg Gross of the Houston Astros and Bake McBride of the St. Louis Cardinals. Bill Madlock of the Cubs should have a lot of support but missed over 30 games because of injury.

After five weeks, the Miami Dolphins have a pair of losses after their super seasons the past two years. Some people say Csonka, Kiick, Warfield and the other WFL jumpers are not giving 100 per cent or are thinking about not getting hurt, but one sound reason for the Dolphins' slow start is the schedule.

Last year, the Super Bowl champions played San Francisco, Oakland, New England, The New York Jets and the Cleveland Browns in their opening five games. This time around, it was New England (vastly improved since '73), Buffalo (also better), San Diego, the Jets and Washington. Looming ahead for the Dolphins are Kansas City, Baltimore twice, Atlanta, New Orleans, Buffalo, New York Jets, Cincinnati and the New England Patriots.

Hockey fans and basketball lovers rejoice: the World Hockey League and the National Basketball begin their seasons Friday.

Two franchises have already folded in the World Football League. It also does not help promotion of the league when mail received about statistics and upcoming games is two weeks late.

Thanks for the note from Mark Long, 174 Snyder Hall in Champaign, concerning Michael Fox joining the Telegraph sports staff. The inference to Michael Fox was correct although the staff could certainly utilize James Fox, the Telegraph's Journalist of the Year.

Sports roundup

Football

The Dixon frosh failed for the sixth consecutive time to gain a victory this season as they lost to Kewanee 34-16 at A. C. Bowlers Field Monday night. Led by the running of a fine halfback named Hart, Kewanee's triple option offense shackled the Dixon defense as it controlled the clock.

When Dixon did get the ball, it moved consistently behind the running of Jeff Fane and the passing of Mike Swinton. Dixon had several offensive drives stopped by fumbles and penalties.

Dixon scored first when Fane went off tackle and crossed the goal line from eight yards out. Fane added the two-point conversion behind the blocking of Tim Brandenburg and Bill Bollman. The last Dixon tally came on a 25-yard pass from Swinton to slotback Brian Callow. The two-point conversion was added by Tim Fane.

Time expired with Dixon on the Kewanee 30-yard line. Thursday, the Dixon "B" squad will travel to play the Ashton frosh, while the next "A" squad contest is Monday, to gain its first win, against Boylan at Loves Park.

Cross-country
AMBOY—Harold Winship established a course record at the Shady Oaks 2.9-mile course during the second annual Amboy Columbus Day Invitational, here, Monday, while the Mt. Morris Mounders won the team title.

DETROIT (AP)—No longer will the cynics chide: "Detroit's got the best 0-4 team in football." Now it's got the best 1-4 team in football.

The one victory may not enhance the looks of the record much, but "it beats getting hit in the eye with a sharp stick," Coach Rick Forzano said after Monday's 17-13 key victory over San Francisco.

The Lions used a disputed pass interference penalty and a key goal line stand to notch their first triumph under Forzano.

The nationally televised game, played before a Tiger Stadium crowd of 45,199, had plenty of exciting plays to keep the viewers happy.

Winship, from Henry, covered the 2.9 miles in 15:14 to better Craig Young's 15:45 set in 1973. Mt. Morris got a second place from Mark Turner in 15:54 and swept sixth through ninth to take the school championship with 32 points.

Oregon was second with 117, Prophetstown third with 117, Newman fourth 123, Amboy and Henry tied for fifth with 132 each, Winnemago was seventh 160, Hall eighth 171, Ashton ninth 220, Polo 10th 267 and Franklin Center did not field a complete team.

Rick Hageman of Henry took third in 16:02, followed by Tom Welty of Amboy (16:06) and Hall's Jeff Bertrand (16:09). Curt Kleckler, Dave Clark, Andrew Reckmeyer and Randy Taylor finished in that order for the Mounders, while Kevin Sasaman of Oregon rounded out the top 10.

Franklin Center's Bob Hall was 11th, followed by Amboy's Rick Farringer, Randy Sharer of Prophetstown, Doug Davis of Mt. Morris, Winnemago's Doug Drogemuller, Dan Eyrich of Prophetstown, Newman's Mark Arseneau, Winnemago's Greg Barker, Jack Donna of Hall and Neil Anderson of Mt. Morris.

Amboy will now host Prophetstown at home on Thursday. Oregon, Mt. Morris and Polo will compete in the Mid-North-east Conference meet Wednesday at Mt. Morris. Saturday, Oregon will host a frosh-soph meet.

Among them:
—A 32-yard pass interference penalty which set up Steve Owens' one-yard touchdown plunge for Detroit in the second quarter.

—Four interceptions. One was returned 44 yards by Lion cornerback Levi Johnson and led to an Errol Mann field goal.

—A 45-yard punt return by Dick Jaaron of the Lions to set up another TD.

—A 64-yard run by 49er rookie Wilbur Jackson to the Detroit one.

—The Lions' goal line stand after that run.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE B-668: Helen Pettengill, of Vermont, telephoned me long distance last Spring. "Dr. Crane," she mourned, "I wanted you to know that Sam just passed away."
"He looked on you as one of his best friends, so I wish you could be present at the Memorial Service we are having."
"And I'd like for you to compose a little tribute to engrave on the back side of his tombstone, for it is now bare, waiting for an appropriate tribute to be chiseled thereon."

Modern Paul Reveres
Samuel B. Pettengill was a twin for the brave Founding Fathers!
As an astute constitutional lawyer, he was elected to the U.S. Congress in the 1930s, as a Democrat.

But he became nauseated by the Roosevelt attempt to pack the Supreme Court, so switched to the Republican Party and later became its national treasurer.

He wrote some of the most effective prose I have ever read and I speak advisedly, for I majored in English at Northwestern University and took practically every course therein during my graduate years when I was gaining my Ph.D. in psychology.

His trenchant feature was widely syndicated in American newspapers.

It was he who alerted me to the essential difference between our Republic vs. a democracy.

He tersely explained why we pledge to the "Republic" in our salute to the flag.

And first broadcast the information that until Roosevelt got elected, even our U.S. Army

Manual expressly stated that the government of the United States "is not a democracy but is a Republic."

He also brought out the fact that Chief Justice John Marshall, who really put the starch in the judicial branch of our Republic, presiding there for 34 years, wisely warned:

"A democracy is mobocracy."

There in, the will of the majority prevails, but the minorities then have no rights, so they can be pillaged and plundered, burned and killed with no protection thereafter.

But in our American Republic, the rights of minorities are visibly guaranteed in our written CONSTITUTION, which is guarded by nine judicial "watchdogs," namely, the Justices on that famous Court.

Remember, too, that this U.S. Constitution was praised by one of Britain's most brilliant Prime Ministers, namely, Gladstone, who said:

"The U.S. Constitution is the greatest document ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man."

That doesn't downgrade the Bible into second place, however, for it was not written at a single time in history but is the product of many prophets over thousands of years!

Even today, 1974, if you ask teachers and many lawyers if our country is a democracy, they still parrot the fallacy that was started by Woodrow Wilson for mere political purposes.

When I was teaching psychology at George Washington University in our national capital, a public relations expert and confidant of Wilson told me that Wilson urged the deletion of "Republic" and the insertion of "democracy," to stampede semi-literate into marking their "X" under that heading on their November ballots.

"Ain't this a democracy?" they will exclaim, "so I'll put my 'X' under 'democratic' on the ballot."

Your Newspaper Boy MAY BE A GIRL!

The term, "Newspaper boy", has fallen by the wayside as newspapers all over America are beginning to contract with girls as well as boys to be their newspaper carriers. As newspaper carriers these young boys and girls are learning to manage their own businesses, a valuable experience which is helping them to develop into better future business leaders.

You're very much on the mind of one with whom you have strong emotional ties. This person will shortly act generously toward you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Your larger ideas have more chance of being successful than your lesser ones do. Paint your canvas with bold strokes.

This is one of those days when things of a material nature are likely to be handed to you without need for you to put out much effort.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
You're lucky now, provided you stick with your own ideas and not those of another. Proceed as your logic dictates.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Those reliable little insights you've learned to depend upon will be extremely accurate today. Blend intuition with reason for guidance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
To influence a group, single out the few key people and work in close accord with them rather than with the majority.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
You're still in a fortunate cycle where your occupation is concerned. Don't let anything rewarding slip through by being indifferent.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
In your dealings now, keep the broader picture before you. The smaller pieces will fall into place once the general outline is perceived.

Oct. 16, 1974
Your bank account is apt to be much fatter at the end of this year than it was when the year began.
